Information Regarding Obituary Submission:

We charge for our services of obtaining, creating or retyping, editing, assembling and formatting per obituary, contacting each newspaper to determine how it is to be submitted and then the actual submission..... $75/obit

We will place your emailed/written obituaries and photos on our website for free. Most newspapers will allow minimal information published as a paid obituary with a link to our website, where a full-length obituary could be posted. In the case of the Coloradoan, they offer a free listing with the person’s name, date of death, and funeral home listed.

Each newspaper has its own method of charging for obituaries. Most charge for any space used while some allow for a free obituary provided their format is used. Whatever they charge will be added to your total cost on your statement of goods and services.

Note: Some families choose to write an obituary and submit directly to the newspapers. Most contact information for newspapers can be found, if not readily available, by an internet search. If the name and phone number of a small weekly newspaper is not known, this usually requires a call to a local mortuary to obtain this information. If a family chooses to be completely responsible for this, newspapers will request payment up front. The family must also be available by telephone for any questions that arise in preparation to go to print including into the evening hours. Most newspapers will accept text in Word format and a separate JPEG file for a scanned photo. A few newspapers are unable to accept pictures electronically and even some will request the information be faxed to them. We can not be responsible for any errors, mistakes, omissions or any other situation that might arise from this if a family wishes to take on this task. It will be determined and noted at the arrangement conference whose responsibility this will be from the informant.
